

Carol Kivler, MS, CSP, CMT

Speaker, Author, Trainer and Mental Health Advocate

Professional speaker, author, thought leader, trusted advisor to international business executives, Carol Kivler is also a passionate advocate for mental health issues. A survivor of four bouts of treatment-resistant depression, she battled this devastating and debilitating mental illness with courage and faith to a full and sustained recovery.

Carol is an ardent advocate for consumers struggling with depression and mental illness. Through her four books, mental health presentations and Courageous Recovery, Inc., her 501 (c) (3) non-profit organization, Carol works tirelessly to overcome stigma and misrepresentations that still surround those suffering from mental illnesses. As a consumer advocate and mental health speaker, she tells the story of the treatment that saved her life, Electroconvulsive Therapy (ECT), and shares strategies for maintaining sustained recovery and mental wellness. Her presentations resonate with mental and medical health professionals, consumers, their families and friends, inspiring compassion, understanding and hope.

During her recovery periods, Carol received a master's degree in human resource education and started Kivler Communications, a company that provides customized corporate training, development and international executive coaching. She also earned her CSP (Certified Speaking Professional) from the National Speakers Association. For the past 16 years, Carol has been living in recovery - proof that recovery is not just possible, it is probable.

Carol's three best-selling books on depression and mental health issues have won multiple awards and a strong following among medical professionals, consumers and their families. She has been interviewed on national television, radio and in print.

Carol has been speaking to the mental health field since 2001. She presents keynotes and workshops at conferences and events as well as all types of Continuing Education Programs: Grand Rounds, staff professional development, CEU/CME courses. Carol is an authentic, riveting, and memorable speaker. Her high-energy and compelling mental health presentations change thinking and encourage participants to move from mental illness to the realm of mental wellness.

Carol's powerful and passionate telling of her very personal and harrowing journey profoundly impacts her audiences and the way they view mental illness. Carol wants everyone to know that: "People with mental illness want to be viewed as courageous survivors - to be accepted, not rejected; respected, not pitied; and admired, not feared".

Speaker, Author, Trainer and Mental Health Advocate

"I am a daughter, sister, mother, grandmother, friend, educator, speaker, author, and business owner. I am also a woman living courageously and successfully with a mental illness diagnosis. I view my diagnosis as a gift that allows me to share my own experience so that those who treat or live with this disease can see that recovery is possible. Through education and communication, we can reduce stigma by changing the face of mental illness."
